QUICKIE

FIRST it was Paris Hilton who lost her pet pooch and now it's Gisele Bündchen.

The sexy model lost her mutt last week and is "inconsolable". Boyfriend Leonardo Di Caprio, 30, offered to buy her a new one, but model Gisele, 24, is "livid" with the poor lad's suggestion. At least he tried...

QUICKIE

AMERICA had better brace itself, for we can reveal Jade Goody's off to Hollywood.

Our spies across the Pond have spotted the Bermondsey girl leaving a major casting agency.

We assume it went well because ex-Big Brother contestant Jade, 25, skipped off down the street.

QUICKIE

JAMES Nesbitt left us devastated after telling us its unlikely there'll be any more Cold Feet.

At the launch of his new DVD Eat My Goal, the 39-year-old Irishman revealed he feels more "mature" now he's got a 'tash. He said: "It's really for Murphy's Law but it does make me feel quite sophisticated."

QUICKIE

JUNGLE queen Kerry Katona's admitted her heart's still broken – and news of ex hubby, Brian McFadden, dining with Delta Goodrem, 19, can't have helped.

If the rumours of new fella Dan Corsi, 30, straying are true, the path to recovery might be bumpy.

Game of bongo for Lee

OH how we love naughty Blue boy Lee Ryan.

The 21-year-old singer, who we have missed from the party circuit of late, was back to his old tricks again when he hit London's trendy Elysium nightclub for a boozy night. Lee, who is back with his former lover known only as Steph, entertained fans on Regent Street, and shock horror, it was with his music skills rather than his fondness for women.

Instead of practising his pulling technique, the serial shagger practised for his forthcoming career as a solo artist next year by taking time to sit down with the club's resident orchestra man to play the bongos. Bongos? Bonkers, more like!

HUSH HUSH

THIS blonde bombshell took two men home after her latest night out on the town and even boasted about her fetish involving whips and chains. The cheeky chick was so high on marching powder she felt other guests' buttocks before groping a doorman and falling flat on her face. And we thought she was such a classy lass.

SPOTTED

IN London: Corrie's Sasha Behar on Oxford Street, Jamie Oliver running through Hampstead Heath, Anthea Turner and Grant Bovey at Natural History Museum, Naomi Campbell being driven down Regent Street. In Manchester: Les Ferdinand at the Lowry hotel and Wayne Rooney buying a suit in the Trafford Centre's Selfridges.

After mixing in his dressing room with guests, including Mis-Teeq and Madonna, the 31-year-old arrived more than fashionably late for his aftershow bash at Mayfair's swish Sketch.

Along with his bandmate Chad Hugo, 30, the megastar, who at the weekend tried it on with Girls Aloud's Sarah Harding, 23, got delayed at west London's Carling Hammersmith Apollo after his sell-out gig.

Phazza – a pal of US hunk Justin

Timberlake, 23, – enjoyed a cheeky few glasses of Cristal in the VIP area with a few blondes who he must have picked up along the way.

"He looked like he was having a lot of fun," said an onlooker.

GOOD old Madonna. The 46-year-old singer shrugged off her Material Girl image when she hit the bar at the gig.

She left both her husband Guy Ritchie, 36, and more shockingly, her Kabbalah at home to enjoy a few jars of lager with new found pals Lionel Richie, 55, and Graig David, 23.

A gig-goer said: "She looked like she was having a ball, though the last thing anyone would have thought she would do is drink alcohol." What a legend.

I CAN PROVE BLUNKETT IS NOT THE DAD
Lover hits back over tot

DAVID Blunkett's former lover claims she can prove he is NOT the father of her two-year-old son.

■ by IAIN BURCHELL

Kimberly Fortier, who had a three-year affair with the Home Secretary, says she has medical evidence to show her husband is the dad.

Mr Blunkett, 57, has launched a legal bid to recognise he is the biological father of pregnant Ms Fortier's son William and her unborn child.

Pals of her husband, Stephen Quinn, say he accepts there is a chance he may not be the father of the baby his wife is expecting in February. A friend said:

"Given that Kimberly was having the affair with Blunkett when she fell pregnant again, it must have occurred to Stephen that the unborn child may not be his."

But Mrs Fortier, 43, and Quinn, 60, have warned the Home Secretary that he faces public humiliation if he does not drop his paternity claim.

Close friends of Vogue publisher Mr Quinn say there is "incontrovertible proof" that Mr Blunkett cannot be William's dad.

One said: "Even given the affair, only Stephen can be the father. If Mr Blunkett believes he fathered William, he is barking up the wrong tree. He will have egg on his face."

Another friend added: "If he wishes to go to court with his claim over William, he is in for a very large shock."

Share

Mr Blunkett's solicitors have written to Ms Fortier, publisher of political magazine The Spectator, demanding DNA tests.

A political source close to Mr Blunkett has said: "David believes he is the children's father and, as such, that he has an obligation to be a father and to share their lives."

ZOE TOT SHOCK

Baby riddle for menace Dennis

■ by LAURA NEIL
ALBERT Square sex bomb Zoe Slater is to feature in a shock pregnancy riddle.

Gorgeous Zoe, played by Michelle Ryan, 20, will reveal she's up the duff after more naughty romps with boyfriend Dennis Rickman.

She finds herself back in his bed when Den (Nigel Harman, 31) returns to Walford after a spell away, trying to get his head together.

But Dennis isn't just romping with leggy Zoe.

He'll re-ignite his love affair with "sister" Sharon Watts (Letitia Dean, 37) because she is the real love of his life.

Fight

Then it emerges that Zoe is apparently expecting.

Last night a soap source said: "It's a hell of a storyline as Sharon and Zoe are fighting for the affections of Dennis."

"But no-one will be sure whether Zoe is actually pregnant or whether she is making it up."

"Put it this way, it will all come out in the wash."

What is for certain though is that Zoe will end up the winner if Dennis decides she is the one for him.

For Sharon is departing, possibly for good. Also heading off to America is her teen "sister" Vicki Fowler, (Scarlett Johnson, 19).

SNEAKY: Is Zoe preggers?

Another leaving the soap is her adoptive dad Dirty Den Watts, played by sex-scandal star Leslie Grantham, 57.

His contract is not being renewed.

BREAK-SPEARE

■ HOLLYOAKS babes turn Romeo and Juliet into a Comedy of Errors when they stage the play. As the college students prepare their Shakespeare production, leading lady Steph Dean (Carly Stenson, 20) takes dramatic advice literally - and breaks her leg.

■ A Hollyoaks source said: "Fans will be on the edge of their seat wondering whether the production will go ahead."

GUT RIDDANCE: Fat Fred is given the heave ho ho ho, and Martin, below, gets into a row with the bouncers

Ah say! I've been barred

■ ROLY-poly Fred Elliott is gutted when nightclub bouncers give him the bum's rush because his size makes him a fire risk.

Son Ashley Peacock's stag do turns to farce when fat Fred (John Savident, 66) and his Corrie friends are also turned away for being too old.

■ And the stunned revellers, including cradle-snatcher Martin Platt (Sean Wilson, 39), are left out in the cold following a row with the doormen. The hilarious storyline, which also sees a sexy stripper dressed as a butcher get Ashley (Steven Arnold, 29) into trouble in a restaurant, will be screened over Christmas.

■ And the hilarity continues when a mix-up leads to three chums believing they are going to be Ashley's best man.

Ciggies kill 5m a year

SMOKING kills five million people a year worldwide.

It's the first time a global death-toll has been revealed and comes after researchers checked health records in scores of countries.

The figure, for adults over 30, shows men are four times more likely to die than women.

The deaths are almost evenly split between those in the developed world and those in developing nations, said academics from Australia and the US.

I CAN'T HELP SMOKING MUM..IT'S IN MY GENES

ADDICTED: Young smoker
Picture posed by model

TEENAGERS hooked on ciggies can blame their parents.

A faulty gene they inherited from one of their parents could be the reason they become nicotine addicts, scientists said yesterday.

The genetic flaw means their liver can't clear the nicotine quickly enough, so smokers start to depend on the chemical because it's always around in their bodies. And the effects are particularly strong in new, young smokers, according to research published in the medical journal Tobacco Control.

■ by ELIZABETH JAMES

With their brain tuned in to having a regular supply of nicotine, it takes fewer cigarettes to turn them into addicts.

Youngsters with the faulty gene are almost three times as likely to become hooked on tobacco as those with normal genes, said the Canadian researchers who carried out a two-year study on 228 Montreal teenagers who already smoked.

Risk

More than one in four became addicted to nicotine – and the highest number was among those with the faulty gene.

Now anti-smoking campaigners may need to take into account the genetic risk, said one of the scientists behind the survey, Dr Jennifer O'Loughlin. Studies suggest that getting hooked early in life is a key to young smokers being unable to kick the habit, she said.

"It is well established that nicotine dependence is associated with smoking cessation failures," said Dr O'Loughlin.

"But no studies to date have investigated the prospect of genetic risk in young smokers," she added.

THE MAN EATERS

Women go bonkers for extra sex

by PAUL MALLEY
NOOKIE-MAD women have taken over from men as the top sexual predators.

They will go to shocking lengths to ensure a night of passion, including spiking drinks with Viagra.

A study, Women As Sexual Aggressors, said some females would do anything for sex.

It is being hailed as proof that man-eaters such as Samantha Jones, played by 48-year-old Kim Cattrall in TV's Sex And The City and Emmerdale's sex-obsessed Chloe Atkinson (Amy Nuttall, 23), are becoming more common.

More than half of those questioned admitted that they'd plied a guy with booze to get bonked. And one in ten said they'd even spiked drinks with Viagra.

Some admitted they'd used bribery and one in 10 said they'd used threats of violence.

Violent

One wife, whose violent husband was in jail, said: "I told one guy that I'd cry rape and tell my husband unless he performed. He did as he was told."

Dr Patrick Anders, who led the study, said: "Sexologists now agree that women have taken a more commanding role in sexual relationships and have exhibited behaviours classified as sexual aggression."

REAL GIRL POWER

ARMWRESTLER Dawn Higson, 15, of Bolton, Lancs, will take on women twice her age for the world title in South Africa this week.

Lemar, who has been with long-term girlfriend Charmaine Powell for nine years, joins a growing list of male stars who have opened their hearts through music.

Lyrics

Brian McFadden penned Sorry, Love Daddy to his two daughters to explain his split from wife Kerry, while Robbie Williams is no stranger to talking about his troubles through his lyrics either.

A spokesman for the star said: "Lemar hasn't been through this himself, but he's seen others suffering around him."

ESTELLE will be performing Free at Christmas in Pop World without Megamix. Police are still after him in connection with a shooting in south London. Others appearing include Westlife, The 411, Rooster, Natasha Bedingfield and McFly...who are not wanted by the fuzz.

Bono's cop choir

U2 brought New York to a standstill when they shot their video for new single All Because Of You. The band stopped traffic in Times Square as they performed from the back of a truck. Bono even had time to pose with donut-eating cops and sing a version of Santa Claus Is Coming To Town.

HERE'S Anastacia performing in Spain - but that's not important. What does matter is that I saw her in Rome for the MTV Awards and she is now officially 100% banger!

For those of you who haven't met her, you may think her impressive assets - see my picture - are complimented by a hefty figure. Incorrect. As a point of fact, she's a little wriggler.

And I do not say that lightly. If you want more of Anastacia, let me know in the usual fashion.

CAUGHT LIVE

JILL SCOTT
Brixton Academy

THIS masterclass in emotional soul went down a proper treat.

As expected, Jill Scott didn't even come close to hitting a duff note and proved that Mariah Carey-style warblings are not needed to pull in the punters.

She treated the crowd - mainly loved-up couples - to most of her new album, with a couple of oldies thrown in.

Personal faves included Bedda At Home and Slowly, Surely.

Just a few more of her better-known songs and a few head-nodders would have made it a perfect evening for me.

RACISTS WRECK RON'S COMEBACK

OFF AIR: Ron Atkinson

FOOTBALL racists have forced telly chiefs to ditch plans to give shamed pundit Ron Atkinson his job back.

ITV bosses reckoned Big Ron, 65, had been punished enough over his on-air outburst and planned to give him a second chance.

But the sickening racial abuse hurled at England's black stars by Spanish fans in Madrid last week has forced them to pull the plug on his planned comeback.

And the shameful monkey chants aimed at Dwight Yorke by Blackburn Rovers fans on Sunday has cemented their decision.

Ron quit in April after calling Chelsea ace Marcel Desailly a "fing thick, lazy n*r". The comment cost him £1.5million in lost earnings.

■ by IAIN BURCHELL

An ITV insider said: "The feeling was that Ron had served his time. But there's no way he can come back after what happened in Spain and Blackburn. It's a shame, because our football shows haven't been the same without him."

Ron will be seen taking race awareness lessons in What Ron Said, to be screened on BBC on December 13.

● David Ashcroft, 21, from Leyland, and Jason Perryman, 22, from Chorley, both Lincs, were last night charged with a racially aggravated public order offence over the Dwight Yorke incident.

Ban for boozy Floyd

TV chef Keith Floyd was yesterday banned from driving for 32 months following a drink-drive smash on a country bridge. Floyd, 60, was arrested after his people carrier crashed head-on with a Land Rover driven by an unnamed woman. Magistrates in Swindon, Wilts, heard that Floyd was so drunk officers kept him in the cells for 10 hours until he sobered up. Floyd, of Faringdon, Oxford, claimed to have had just two whiskies before the crash but the court heard he was one and a half times over the limit.

Strokes

Floyd, who has recently suffered two strokes, was also fined £1,500. Speaking after sentence, he said: "It's Christmas time, enjoy yourselves, get pissed at home - but don't drive. "This is the first time in 41 years I've had any kind of driving offence." Mr Guyl-Wiggins, defending, told the court that Floyd had lost between £20,000 and £30,000 as a result of the crash after work "dried up". He had also been the victim of an armed robbery at his French home.

Alert on housing

A FULL-SCALE housing crash could hit Britain if interest rates are not cut, a bank warned yesterday. DeutscheBank predicted property prices would fall by around 10% to 15% over the next year and would then stay flat for several years. It says interest rates must come down to prevent a full-blown slump of 30%.

Ugly

The bank estimated that property was currently overvalued by an average of 20% to 30%, with some overpriced by as much as 40%. The report follows a similar alert at the weekend by Barclays. Property website rightmove.co.uk also warned the market of "ugly times" ahead.

Dolphins save family from great white shark

FOUR terrified swimmers were saved from a killer shark by a group of brave dolphins.

The six dolphins surrounded the three helpless lifeguards

by IAIN BURCHELL

and a teenage girl to keep the 9ft-long great white shark at bay for at least 40 minutes.

The dolphins circled lifeguard Rob Howes, his 15-year-old daughter and two colleagues, to drive away the hungry predator as it lurked just 100 metres off shore.

They repeatedly flipped their tails in the water to force the shark back until it was safe for the swimmers to head for the safety of the beach. The shark had been silently closing in on its prey as the lifeguards trained off the northern coast of New Zealand.

They didn't even realise what was happening until they were suddenly surrounded by the pod of dolphins, who started to herd them together.

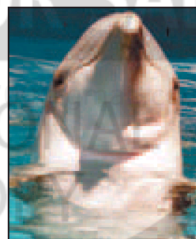

Mr Howes, from nearby Whangarei, tried to swim away in the confusion but two of the biggest dolphins pushed him back.

It was only when he was back behind the dolphins' defensive barrier that he saw the deadly shark just a few metres away.

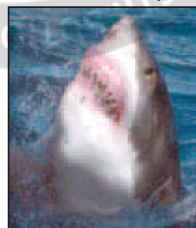

Danger

He said: "They pushed all four of us together by doing tight circles around us, then I realised the dolphins were protecting us."

Marine expert Ingrid Visser, of the Orca Research group, said: "They could have sensed the danger to the swimmers. Dolphins will attack sharks to defend themselves and their young."

RUDE BRENDAN'S OUT IN THE COLE

Dance ace Strictly banned

BALLROOM big-mouth Brendan Cole is being barred from Strictly Come Dancing for leaving partner Sarah Manners in tears.

BBC chiefs say the arrogant 28-year-old won't be back for future shows after he bullied Casualty sizzler Sarah.

Behind the scenes, Kiwi Brendan left her weeping even before the pair were booted off the BBC1 show on Saturday.

Actress Sarah, 29, now plans to go on GMTV Friday morning to reveal her TRUE feelings about him.

A BBC insider said: "Viewers didn't see half of what was going on. Everyone was shocked by the way Brendan carried on.

EXCLUSIVE ■ by NIGEL PAULEY

"Just before he was due to take to the floor with Sarah, he threw a wobbly about her hair.

"It had taken the make-up team hours to prepare, but it wasn't good enough for him. He demanded it was re-done and Sarah was in a right old state.

Nasty

"It was the final straw for the producers, who are tired of his tantrums and hissy-fits.

"Sarah kept her silence while she was still in the show.

"But now she wants the world to know what he's really like - a nasty arrogant git - and is planning to tell all in front of the cameras."

Another source who had dealings with Brendan said: "He thought just because he'd been on telly a bit, he could treat me like dirt."

Cole caused controversy following the first series, which he won with TV girl Natasha Kaplinsky, 31.

He then split with lover and pro dance partner Camilla Dallerup, 30, who is also in the show, amid rumours of an affair with Natasha.

'COP-KILL' GUN FOUND UNDER SUSPECT'S BED

■ by JERRY LAWTON
THE bodybuilder accused of shooting a bobby dead was caught with the gun hidden under his mattress - loaded and ready to fire.

The pistol was found by an officer searching David Bieber's hotel room after his arrest, a jury heard yesterday.

Scientist Valerie Tomlinson said Bieber's DNA was on the trigger and other parts of the 9mm Croatian HS semi-automatic weapon.

There was a one-in-a-billion chance it belonged to someone else. The weapon was used to shoot Pc Ian Broadhurst, 34, and two colleagues in Leeds on Boxing Day last year, Newcastle upon Tyne Crown Court was told.

Scream

Pathologist Prof Christopher Milroy said the first shot to hit Pc Broadhurst in the chest would have proved fatal but he would have been able to shout or scream. A second into his head would have killed him instantly.

Weapons shop assistant Henry Whittick said Bieber had bought 700 bullet cases and gunpowder from a north London store.

Bieber, 38, denies murder and other charges. The case continues.

MASH DOCS TO HELP SMASHED

M*A*S*H-style hospitals are being set up in cities to treat boozy party-goers caught up in fights.

Health chiefs hope the military type hospitals made famous in the cult TV series will take the pressure off hard-pressed casualty units.

One is being tested in Swansea to tackle problem binge drinkers and violence in the run-up to Christmas.

Cope

Other cities will be watching closely as they struggle to cope with the huge demand drunks place on weekend emergency medical services.

Ambulance officer Mark Winter said: "This is a chance to deal on-the-spot with people who may have become injured as a result of violence and aggression. It will stop them clogging up hospital A&E

by JOHN MAHONEY

departments while also helping and supporting them.

"It makes sense rather than seeing these patients sitting in accident units for hours when they don't really need to be there and the staff have more important things to do."

Paramedics, sometimes accompanied by police officers, will respond to 999 calls in the city's hectic pub quarter.

People who need treatment for minor injuries will be transported to the field hospital set up in a main street medical centre.

Mr Winter said: "We've up to 40 calls a night and the majority will be able to be dealt with at the centre. Wherever you have large centres of population drinking and enjoying themselves throughout the evening, this type of service could work."

Dr Richard Lewis, Welsh secretary of the British Medical Association, said: "This is a forward-thinking and innovative development to try and relieve pressure on hospitals that they could well do without."

"Anything that helps to address this increased demand on emergency services has to be welcomed."

"Hopefully it will also provide an opportunity to educate people that drinking to excess isn't good for their health."

Local GP Dai Lloyd said: "Creating a field hospital on the street close to the casualties will help enormously by taking the pressure off A&E."

YOU'RE BUNNED

England ace Beattie slung from bar in bust-up over muffins

ENGLAND ace James Beattie was banned from a bar after a bust-up over a bowl of muffins.

And terrified staff were forced to call the police when Beattie's gang of pals squared up to other drinkers.

Assistant manager Dominique Palmer, 20, said: "I was scared because we didn't have door staff on until later and they were quite intimidating."

Dominique said the Southampton striker and his pals had

by TONY LEONARD

already annoyed staff and drinkers with "rowdy and drunken" behaviour.

And the bar boss chucked the £15,000-a-week player from the premises when he stuffed his head into a bowl of wrapped muffins - selling for a £1 each.

But minutes later the £7 million-rated player marched back in and was branded "a knob" by a man in another group.

Dominique said Beattie, 26, shouted: "Are you starting? Are you starting?" The two groups squared up to each other and beer was spilled and glasses smashed.

Staff at Bar Med in Bourne-mouth, Dorset, called the police who dashed to the scene.

Arrogant

Officers spoke to Beattie and his pals and gave them a warning under the Public Order Act.

Beattie has since apologised for the Sunday teatime rumpus.

But Dominique added: "He was obnoxious and arrogant."

"The police came and spoke to Beattie and his friends. As they left they said they were going to Spearpoint Rhino, the lap-dancing bar. They were typical footballers."

A spokesman for Premiership club Southampton said: "We're waiting for the facts before deciding what action, if any, to take."

A spokesman for Beattie's agents, First Artists, said: "We understand he was in the bar and was being subjected to an awful lot of abuse for no apparent reason."

Beattie is no stranger to police action. Two years ago he received a drink-drive ban.
